Polio Cases in State Decline
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The number of polio cases reported in Arkansas was down sharply last week from the previous week.
Nine cases of polio were reported for the state during the week ended last Saturday, according to the State Health Department. The previous week 21 cases were reported. And 25 cases were recorded three weeks ago.
But the total number of cases for the year so far still is higher than the total for the same period in 1953. While 121 polio cases have been reported to date in 1954 by cases had been reported by the same date in 1953.
No cases reported more than one case of polio last week. The only case reported was a 10-year-old boy, Charles Boone, Clark, Grant, Pulaski, Benton, Clark, Faulkner, Jefferson and Nevada.

The Negro Community
By Helen Turner
The Negro Community has been brought to the attention of the public by the death of a young man, a member of the community, who was killed in a car accident. The community is now in a state of mourning and the funeral services will be held at a local church.

How the Confederacy

Solved Postal Deficit

Case of Alcott Doctor

Here are two editorials from

the Southern newspapers:

NO REAL PROBLEM, SUM

When Hon. Arthur Sumner

is making political speeches

he is tussling about the deficit

of his Postoffice Department.

We don't blame him, it's fussable. But for the life of us

cannot understand, why the

United States is unable to operate

its mail service profitably.

The Confederacy did.

Frank van der Linden, a Washington correspondent for a number of Southern newspapers, tells

about it in The Washington Post.

In the first place, the East

Tennessee-born John H. Reagan,

whom Master Jeff summoned to the Confederate exhibit,

was under the general impression that made deficits illegal. So from the start he charged five times as much as the actual cost. Three cents for the first half-cent of mail. Later the rate became 10 cents.

But the total number of cases for the year so far still is higher than the total for the same period in 1953. While 121 polio cases have been reported to date in 1954 by same date in 1953.

No cases reported more than one case of polio last week. The only case reported was a 10-year-old boy, Charles Boone, Clark, Grant,

Pulaski, Benton, Clark, Faulkner,

Jefferson and Nevada.

when he said that the per farm worker had risen from $100 in 1920 to $200, approximately 50 per cent this increase is due to prices and the other 50 per cent to the cost of machinery and equipment operating costs.

Mr. Martindale said a keynote of the conference is the ability to conserve the credit needs of man having a basis for action in the face of the growth.

Martindale said there was attended by 200 men and officers of the production credit association, Illinois, Missouri and Iowa.

Mr. Martindale learned that the three states are producing a billion dollars in the production credit during the past twenty-four months, an amount for each $100 loaned, members in the three states have a total stock of these credit certificates.

Jail Escapes Are Arrested

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Chicago Sheriff Sam Hartigan says Saturday two Negroes who robbed a store and escaped from jail were arrested at Brinkley, Ark. Hartigan said the youths were taken to Brinkley, Ark., where they were arrested at the time of the arrest.

Brinkley police said they arrested a third Negro, George Joy who is suspected of taking the youths to the jail.

the Tom's-Cam! during her high school days, retains a veneration for the "various factors" that influence the public.

"The thing that gave me something that set me apart was something that as an actress you regard as 'leaving your efforts,'" she said.

"For example, when they were filming 'Dear Ruth,' I was told to make a noise to annoy my father. He had grounded me and was trying to read the paper.

"I was sitting in the room and everything between a long sigh and a groan of exasperation. It wasn't made popular. But to annoy my cousin caught on. Teen-age kids all of the nation picked it up and made it popular.

"Isn't it funny you can work over a scene for weeks, and then one day you're in the limelight. Then one day's work, something you thought nothing of and it's a big way.

"You never know in this business what's going to happen. It's all in your attention. I suppose it's this doubt and gamble that makes acting interesting."

in the northeast section of the city. The jumper is believed to have landed on the roof and rapped down through the ceiling, splitting the building into two. The first survivor, a pine roofer, is back of the station home, and from there he is being taken to the hospital. No injuries were reported from the other survivors of the first.

Polio Cases in State Decline
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The number of polio cases reported in Arkansas was down sharply last week from the previous week.
Nine cases of polio were reported for the state during the week ended last Saturday, according to the State Health Department. The previous week 21 cases were reported. And 25 cases were recorded three weeks ago.
But the total number of cases for the year so far still is higher than the total for the same period in 1953. While 171 polio cases have been reported to date in 1954 by cases had been reported by the same date in 1953.
No counties reported more than one case of polio last week. The only counties reporting one case each were Boone, Clay, Grant, Pulaski, Benton, Clark, Faulkner, Jefferson and Nevada.

The Negro Community
By Helen Turner
Hon. Mrs. M. M. Turner at Hick's Funeral Home
The Negro community in Little Rock is holding a series of meetings to discuss the problem of the Negro in the community. The meetings are being held at the Hick's Funeral Home, 1000 N. Main St., Little Rock.
The first meeting was held last night, and was attended by a large number of people. The speaker was Hon. Mrs. M. M. Turner, who is the president of the Negro community in Little Rock.
The speaker discussed the problem of the Negro in the community, and the need for action to be taken to improve the situation. She urged the community to work together to solve the problems of the Negro.

How the Confederacy

Solved Postal Deficit

Case of Alcott Doctor

Here are two editorials from

the Southern newspapers:

NO REAL PROBLEM, SUM

When Hon. Arthur Sumner

is making political speeches

he is tussling about the deficit

of his Postoffice Department.

We don't blame him, it's

fussable. But for the life of us

cannot understand, why the

United States is unable to operate

its mail service profitably.

The Confederacy did.

Frank van der Linden, a Washington correspondent for a number of Southern newspapers, tells

about it in The Washington Post.

In the first place, the East

Tennessee-born John H. Reagan,

whom Master Jeff summoned to the Confederate cabinet,

was under the general impression

that made deficits illegal. So from

the start he charged five times as much as the actual cost of the mail for the first half-century of mail. Later the rate became 10 times as much.

Postmaster General Rogers

took over the old Federal postal service, raised Washington of most postal bureau heads, and built himself an efficient organization.

The service was used at first in 1850 to sweep the country. Unnecessary mail routes were cut or cancelled. Mail boxes were used at first. In 1850

Rogers reported a profit of $750,000.

But the mail moved slowly.

Sometimes it moved uncertainly.

It did not move, and at a profit.

The late Confederacy had the solution to many things. You remember the story of the two vintage colonists meeting on the veranda and discussing world disarmament? One said: "Disarmament is no real problem.

Whether he can help yet.

Whether he can help yet.

Whether he can help yet.

Whether he can help yet.

Whether he can help yet.

Fires Destroy Plants, Timber in Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Fires yesterday destroyed the Lincoln Oak flooring plant at Star

City, Ark., brought about 200 volunteer fire fighters into service at Clarksville, and burned over a total of 2,333 acres of land in 19 separate forest fires.

Loss at the oak flooring plant at Star City was estimated at $100,000. Civil Deputy Sheriff Victor Foley said about 200 volunteers turned out there in a vain effort to halt the blaze.

At Clarksville, woods and grass were burned and fire threatened to spread in on the city itself as an estimated 200 men fought to stop it.

U. S. Forest Ranger Leonard

Bradley said the last of the fire was under control by 10:30 a. m.

Faibus to Take Short Vacation

By Ray Stephens

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Orval Faibus

began shutting down his campaign headquarters today as he prepared to leave for his Huntsville home and a two-week vacation.

The offices of the Hon. Democratic gubernatorial nominee will close tonight. And Faibus and his staff will take a rest before opening a campaigning drive here.

"I won't be in Little Rock unless

I have a good reason for my presence," said Faibus. "All the staff is going to rest and so am I."

The nominee declined to say

With will overcome the most miserable circumstances

Fires Destroy Plants, Timber in Arkansas

By The Associated Press
Fires yesterday destroyed the Lincoln Oak flooring plant at Star City, Ark., brought about 200 volunteer fire fighters into service at Clarksville, and burned over a total of 2,333 acres of land in 19 separate forest fires.

Loss at the oak flooring plant at Star City was estimated at $100,000. Civil Deputy Sheriff Victor Foley said about 200 volunteers turned out there in a vain effort to halt the blaze.

At Clarksville, woods and grass was burned and fire threatened to take in on the city itself as an estimated 200 men fought to stop it. U. S. Forest Ranger Leonard Bradley said the blaze, which started in the late afternoon, was halted just a quarter-mile from the city's airport, started from a trash fire.

Bradley said one unidentified fireman, caught in the middle of the sweeping fire, had a bit of "Friday the 13th" luck.

He said the family, fearing loss of the home, had moved furniture into the house. Volunteer fire-fighters stalled the fire and saved the houses.

The fire started in the roof, but the cause was not determined. The roof fell in about an hour after the fire started.

The plant, where children's and adult's furniture is made, was a total loss, firemen said. Trucks from the Alcoa and the Little Rock Fire Department as well as getting the fire under control.

Senate Boosts Social Security Benefits

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.
WASHINGTON (AP)—Moving with unaccustomed speed, the Senate voted last night to broaden social security coverage to another 500,000 workers and to boost both benefits and the payroll taxes that pay for them.

Sen. Kenneth of California, the Republican leader, said in an interview he expects a Senate-House conference to be held in the near future to iron out the differences between the two bodies on the bill.

Sen. Kenneth said the bill would raise the maximum monthly benefit from $100 to $125.50. The annual maximum would rise from $1,200 to $1,506. The bill would also raise the maximum monthly benefit from $100 to $125.50.

Namedropping Sunday & Monday at Saenger

Is Pastime in Filmland

By BOB THOMAS

IT'S TIME we came to grips with the issue of namedropping.

It ranks with sex and scandal as one of Hollywood's favorite pastimes. There may be some squares who have never heard of the expression, so I'll explain it.

When a Hollywood character drops a name, he is using the ancient system of getting acquainted. No doubt some early Roman remarked casually to friends, "I'm Julius the other day."

He was referring, of course, to Julius Caesar. Likewise, when Lana: She's a scream. We were talking the other night at Clifford's. She told me the A and Frank's."

Get the picture. The speaker drops a few names into the conversation, making it seem that he is a big wheel.

He got some inside info on the namedropping issue from an expert on the subject, Charlton Heston. "Mind you, he is not a namedropper himself. He is merely an amused observer."

It all arose when we were watching scenes of "Blue Horizons." A photographer came in and said he was "strolling Hollywood."

Such events in these two great democracies inevitably incline one toward much reflection concerning the nature of the namedropping and the relationship between Christianity and democracy.

The Christian in the very nature of his religion has a clear and particular obligation as a citizen. Brotherly love is of the very essence of human relationships in a democracy.

That is the Christian ideal. What a democracy would be if all men believed in it, and practiced it. But all citizens are not Christians; there are those who are not.

Such another variety of namedropping. He isn't content to call stars by their stage names. He uses their real names, indicating that he has known them from "way back. For instance, he'll say, "I met Cary Grant as Archie or Ray Milland as Jack."

On the semibarbaric side, Heston declared his unique familiarity of people in Hollywood.

"I think it's all right to maintain a first name basis with a fellow actor or her corresponding actress," he remarked.

But I can't see calling everyone by his first name, particularly when more mature and distinguished actors are concerned.

Not so some Hollywoodians. I've seen young actors and actresses "move a little to the right, Ethel."

And now if you'll excuse me, I have a date with Joe and Marilyn. That's Joe Grubbs and Marilyn Crawford, of course.

nation called of God can fall when that call is spurned or forgotten.

"What seem to me the noblest expression of true and impassioned patriotism came out of an Israel that had learned through suffering and exile. It is in the 62nd chapter of Isaiah. "For Zion's sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth."

If every citizen in a democracy could see in his country an ideal Zion, set for light and leadership among the nations (see Malachi 3:12), what a different world might well emerge instead of a world of international fear, suspicion, and strife.

An eminent English hymn writer expressed that ideal in a Congregational hymnbook: "Lift thy song among the nations, England of the Lord beloved." It is a pity that that hymn could not be adapted to, and sung in, every democratic land. And at least four lines concerning God's call would need no alteration at all: "How He trusts thee with the treasure Of His Word to send it forth; Mighty fulfill His pleasure, Send His Word o'er all the earth."

So much for a national ideal. But a nation depends upon what its citizens are. And here, I think, is one of the deeply wrong and dangerous conceptions of democracy: It is merely that democracy consists in majority rule.

Majority rule, popular government, is better than the rule of a dictator, or the rule of a minority. But majority rule is a necessary procedure, or technique of democracy; not its essence or true foundation.

Government of the people, by the people, for the people has its true foundation only in the hearts, minds and wills of a people are self-ruled.

Another July 14 has passed, and in honor of the formation of the Dominion by the Act of Confederation in 1867, it is Canada's "Dominion Day."

nation called of God can fall when that call is spurned or forgotten.

"What seem to me the noblest expression of true and impassioned patriotism came out of an Israel that had learned through suffering and exile. It is in the 62nd chapter of Isaiah. "For Zion's sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth."

If every citizen in a democracy could see in his country an ideal Zion, set for light and leadership among the nations (see Malachi 3:12), what a different world might well emerge instead of a world of international fear, suspicion, and strife.

An eminent English hymn writer expressed that ideal in a Congregational hymnbook: "Lift thy song among the nations, England of the Lord beloved." It is a pity that that hymn could not be adapted to, and sung in, every democratic land. And at least four lines concerning God's call would need no alteration at all: "How He trusts thee with the treasure Of His Word to send it forth; Mighty fulfill His pleasure, Send His Word o'er all the earth."

So much for a national ideal. But a nation depends upon what its citizens are. And here, I think, is one of the deeply wrong and dangerous conceptions of democracy: It is merely that democracy consists in majority rule.

Majority rule, popular government, is better than the rule of a dictator, or the rule of a minority. But majority rule is a necessary procedure, or technique of democracy; not its essence or true foundation.

Government of the people, by the people, for the people has its true foundation only in the hearts, minds and wills of a people are self-ruled.

Gratuitous Criticism

Dear Miss Dix: Although I am happily married, with three grown sons, I am miserable about one situation in my life. I have three younger sisters, and for the past year none of them has spoken to me. The final break came as the culmination of years of bickering, with them constantly telling me how to run my home, husband and children, carrying untrue or exaggerated tales back and forth. My youngest sister is the prime offender. Although they live near enough to visit each other, they never stop at the house. They all drive cars - I haven't one. There's nothing one can do to remedy a family situation like this. I ignore such critics.

Answer: The whole tone of your letter is one of complete martyrdom and persecution. You feel that all your life these sisters have placed on you, ignored you, or shown preference for almost anyone else. Probably you overdid the "daisy sitting" routine while the family was growing up, and, at the first opportunity, the other girls began putting you in a subordinate position, to which, much to their amazement, you submitted meekly. There's no reason why anyone should accept unwanted and unwarranted criticism from others, either family or friends. If the offender is told just two or three times that your way of doing things seems to be working out all right, the gratuitous advice may cease. However, when it's quite evident that these little sisters are reaching vulnerable spots, be assured they will continue and increase. Meet this type of faultfinding with indifference, not tears. Since you never had much pleasure in the association with your sisters, it's difficult to see why you want to see more of them, except that you prove the truth of the adage "Blood is thicker than water."

Suppose you make the overture to a closer relationship, instead of waiting for someone else to do it. It appears that you sit home and wait for them to call or visit, instead of occasionally taking the initiative, yourself. When you meet one of them, be as sisterly as you can, interested in their activities, the welfare of their families, doing no complaining, and so on. Namedropping Sunday & Monday at Saenger

By BOB THOMAS

IT'S TIME we came to grips with the issue of namedropping. It ranks with sex and scandal as one of Hollywood's favorite pastimes. There may be some squares who have never heard of the expression, so I'll explain. When a Hollywood character drops a name, he is using the ancient system of getting attention. No doubt some early Roman remarked casually to friends, "I saw Julius the other day. I gave him the name of my toga (tailor)." He was referring, of course, to Julius Caesar. Likewise, when Lana: She's a scream. We were talking the other night at Clifford's. She told me the A and Franko."

Get the picture. The speaker drops a few names into the conversation, making it seem that he is a big wheel.

It all arose when we were in the home of Mrs. Cecil Biddle on Monday night at 7:20. Another July 14 was celebrated in honor of the formation of the Dominion by the Act of Confederation in 1867. It is Canada's "Dominion Day."

Such events in these two great democracies inevitably incline one toward much reflection concerning God and country, the nature of true patriotism, and the relationship between Christianity and democracy. It was the last of the Christian in the very nature of his religion has a clear and particular obligation as a citizen. Brotherly love is of the very essence of human relationships in a democracy. It is the love of a God of love.

St. Paul says that we are members one of another (Eph. 4:25); and the Apostle John says: "If God so loved us, we ought also to love one another" (1 John 4:19).

That is the Christian ideal. What a democracy it would be if all men believed in it, and practiced it. But all citizens are not Christians; there are those who are not. This Christian heritage came, and who share with Christians this ideal of human relationships.

It is the history in the conception of the Commonwealth of Israel profoundly illustrates both the greatness of a people whose God is the Lord, and how tragically a democracy it would be if all men believed in it, and practiced it.

But I can't see calling everyone by his first name, particularly when more mature and distinguished citizens are concerned.

Not so some Hollywoodites. I've seen young stars waving and smiling, "move a little to the right, Ethel."

And now if you'll excuse me, I have a date with Joe and Marylyn. That's Joe Grubbs and Marilyn Crawford, of course.

Nine out of ten U. S. babies are born in hospitals compared with four out of ten, 20 years ago. One Japanese and one in 400 owns an automobile.

What seem to me the noblest expression of true and impassioned patriotism came out of an Israel that had learned through suffering and exile. It is in the 62nd chapter of Isaiah. "For Zion's sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth."

If every citizen in a democracy could see in his country an ideal Zion, set for light and leadership among the nations (see Malachi 3:12), what a different world might well emerge instead of a world of international fear, suspicion, and strife.

An eminent English hymn writer expressed that ideal in a Congregational hymnbook: "Lift thy song among the nations, England of the Lord beloved." It is a pity that that hymn could not be adapted to, and sung in, every democratic land. And at least four lines concerning God's call would need no alteration at all: "How He trusts thee with the treasure Of His Word to send it forth; Mighty fulfill His pleasure, Send His Word o'er all the earth."

So much for a national ideal. But a nation depends upon what its citizens are. And here, I think, is one of the deeply wrong and dangerous conceptions of democracy: It is merely that democracy consists in majority rule.

Gratuitous Criticism

Dear Miss Dix: Although I am happily married, with three grown sons, I am miserable about one situation in my life. I have three younger sisters, and for the past year none of them has spoken to me. The final break came as the culmination of years of bickering, with them constantly telling me how to run my home, husband and children, carrying untrue or exaggerated tales back and forth. My youngest sister is the prime offender. Although they live near enough to visit each other, they never stop at the house. They all drive cars - I haven't one. There's nothing one can do to remedy a family situation like this. I ignore such critics.

Answer: The whole tone of your letter is one of complete martyrdom and persecution. You feel that all your life these sisters have picked on you, ignored you, or shown preference for almost anyone else. Probably you overdid the "dear sister" routine while the family was growing up, and, at the first opportunity, the other girls began putting you in a subordinate position, to which, much to their amazement, you submitted meekly. There's no reason why anyone should accept unwanted and unwarranted criticism from others, either family or friends. If the offender is told just two or three times that your way of doing things seems to be working out all right, the gratuitous advice may cease. However, when it's quite evident that these little sisters are reaching vulnerable spots, be assured they will continue and increase. It's this type of faultfinding with indifference, not tears. Since you never had much pleasure in the association with your sisters, it's difficult to see why you want to see more of them, except that you prove the truth of the adage "Blood is thicker than water."

Suppose you make the overture to a closer relationship, instead of waiting for someone else to do it. It appears that you sit home and wait for them to call or visit, instead of occasionally taking the initiative, yourself. When you meet one of them, be as sisterly as you can, interested in their activities, the welfare of their families, doing no complaining about your own. Accepting any barbed remarks with a figurative shrug. Inspire respect and you'll get it.

Dear Miss Dix: Do you know of any books I could read to help get along better with boys?

Answer: Science Research Associates, Inc., 228 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., publishes a fine line of booklets just for your purpose. They are 40 cents each and the one I recommend particularly are: "Dating Days," "Growing up Socially," and "Getting Along with Others."

Dear Miss Dix: I'm a girl of 20. I have been corresponding with a boy for some time and we have grown very fond of each other. He is asked to visit him at camp during the summer, but my parents don't approve. Do you?

Answer: I agree with your folks that it would be a mistake to visit someone you haven't met. If the boy does visit, when he has left, the whole tone of your letter is one of complete martyrdom and persecution. You feel that all your life these sisters have picked on you, ignored you, or shown preference for almost anyone else. Accepting any barbed remarks with a figurative shrug. Inspire respect and you'll get it.

Dear Miss Dix: Do you know of any books I could read to help get along better with boys?

Answer: Science Research Associates, Inc., 228 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., publishes a fine line of booklets just for your purpose. They are 40 cents each and the one I recommend particularly are: "Dating Days," "Growing up Socially," and "Getting Along with Others."

Dear Miss Dix: I'm a girl of 20. I have been corresponding with a boy for some time and we have grown very fond of each other. He is asked to visit him at camp during the summer, but my parents don't approve. Do you?

Answer: I agree with your folks that it would be a mistake to visit someone you haven't met. If the boy does visit, when he has left, the whole tone of your letter is one of complete martyrdom and persecution. You feel that all your life these sisters have picked on you, ignored you, or shown preference for almost anyone else. Probably you overdid the "dear sister" routine while the family was growing up, and, at the first opportunity, the other girls began putting you in a subordinate position, to which, much to their amazement, you submitted meekly. There's no reason why anyone should accept unwanted and unwarranted criticism from others, either family or friends. If the offender is told just two or three times that your way of doing things seems to be working out all right, the gratuitous advice may cease. However, when it's quite evident that these little sisters are reaching vulnerable spots, be assured they will continue and increase. It's this type of faultfinding with indifference, not tears. Since you never had much pleasure in the association with your sisters, it's difficult to see why you want to see more of them, except that you prove the truth of the adage "Blood is thicker than water."

Suppose you make the overture to a closer relationship, instead of waiting for someone else to do it. It appears that you sit home and wait for them to call or visit, instead of occasionally taking the initiative, yourself. When you meet one of them, be as sisterly as you can, interested in their activities, the welfare of their families, doing no complaining about your own. Accepting any barbed remarks with a figurative shrug. Inspire respect and you'll get it.

Namedropping Sunday & Monday at Saenger

Is Pastime in Filmland

By BOB THOMAS

IT'S TIME we came to grips with the issue of namedropping. It ranks with sex and scandal as one of Hollywood's favorite pastimes. There may be some squares who have never heard of the expression, so I'll explain. When a Hollywood character drops a name, he is using the ancient system of getting respect. No doubt some early Roman remarked casually to friends, "I'm going to Julius the other day. I gave him the name of my toga (tailor)." He was referring, of course, to Julius Caesar. Likewise, when Lana: She's a scream. We were taking the other night at Clifton's. She told me the A and Franko."

Get the picture. The speaker drops a few names into the conversation, making it seem that he is a big wheel.

It got some inside info on the namedropping issue from an expert on the subject, Charlton Heston. "Mind you, he is not a namedropper himself. He is merely an amused observer."

It all arose when we were watching scenes of "Blue Horizons." A photographer came in and said he was "strolling Kelly Day."

Such events in these two great democracies inevitably incline one toward much reflection concerning the nature of the nation, the nature of true patriotism, and the relationship between Christianity and democracy.

The Christian in the very nature of his religion has a clear and particular obligation as a citizen. Brotherly love is of the very essence of human relationships in a democracy.

DOROTHY DIX

Gratuitous Criticism

Dear Miss Dix: Although I am happily married, with three grown sons, I am miserable about one situation in my life. I have three younger sisters, and for the past year none of them has spoken to me. The final break came as the culmination of years of bickering, with them constantly telling me how to run my home, husband and children, carrying untrue or exaggerated tales back and forth. My youngest sister is the prime offender. Although they live near enough to visit, they never stop at the house. They all drive cars - I haven't one. There's nothing one can do to remedy a family situation like this. Ignore such critics.

Answer: The whole tone of your letter is one of complete martyrdom and persecution. You feel that all your life these sisters have picked on you, ignored you, or shown preference for almost anyone else. Probably you overdid the "daisy sitting" routine while the family was growing up, and, at the first opportunity, the other girls began putting you in a subordinate position, to which, much to their amazement, you submitted meekly. There's no reason why anyone should accept unwanted and unwarranted criticism from others, either family or friends. If the offender is told just two or three times that your way of doing things seems to be working out all right, the gratuitous advice may cease. However, when it's quite evident that these little slanders are reaching vulnerable spots, be assured they will continue and increase. Resist this type of faultfinding with indifference, not tears. Since you never had much pleasure in the association with your sisters, it's difficult to see why you want to see more of them, except that you prove the truth of the adage "Blood is thicker than water."

Suppose you make the overture to a closer relationship, instead of waiting for someone else to do it. It appears that you sit home and wait for them to call or visit, instead of occasionally taking the initiative, yourself. When you meet one of them, be as sisterly as you can, interested in their activities, the welfare of their families, doing no complaining, and, if necessary, accepting any barbed remarks with a figurative shrug. Inspire respect and you'll get it.

Dear Miss Dix: Do you know of any books I could read to help get along better with boys?

Answer: Science Research Associates Inc. of 228 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., publishes a fine line of booklets just for your purpose. They are 40 cents each and the one I recommend particularly are: "Dating Days," "Growing up Socially," and "Getting Along with Others."

Dear Miss Dix: I'm a girl of 20, have been corresponding with a boy for some time and we have grown very fond of each other. He is asked to visit him at camp during the summer, but my parents don't approve. Do you?

Answer: I agree with your folks that it would be a mistake to visit someone you haven't met. If the boy does visit, when he has left,

Printers Laws To Be Aired

LITTLE ROCK (AP) Representatives of the printing industry yesterday were invited to discuss Arkansas printing laws which have been cited as archaic and inadequate.

The invitation was extended by a subcommittee of the Arkansas Legislative Council.

Funds Asked for Negro Blind

LITTLE ROCK (AP) The Board of the Arkansas School for the Blind yesterday asked for $70,000 for operation during 1955-56, an increase of $25,000.

The budget for 1955-56 was $50,000.

Board members said nearly all the increase would be used to increase salaries of the school's teachers, making them equal with those of teachers at the white school for the blind and deaf.

Actor's Son to Stand Trial

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) Edward G. Robinson Jr., 31, son of the actor, must stand Superior Court trial on charges of holding up two taxi drivers. Arraignment is set for Aug. 30.

Young Robinson, acquitted of a last check charge in 1952 and arrested on other occasions on drunk charges, remained free for $10,000 bail posted by his father July 20.

Cab driver Michael J. Plasek testified at preliminary hearing yesterday that young Robinson was the passenger who hit him on the head and robbed him of $30 on June 25.

The second driver, Harry Cherneck, identified the actor's son as the man who pulled a gun on his back saying "if you ever want to see daylight again, hand me all your money." That was July 1.

Cherneck said he gave up $11.

Young Robinson says he is innocent. His parents were in court yesterday following the proceedings.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Reynolds have returned from Oklahoma City, where they have been at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. R. W. Reynolds, who is recovering from major surgery. They were also guests of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Moseley.

Johnny Whit Davis has returned to El Dorado after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Davis, and his sister, Mrs. John A. Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Thomas have returned from Tulsa, Okla., where they have been at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. R. W. Reynolds, who is recovering from major surgery. They were also guests of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Moseley.

Mr. and Mrs. John Barrow, Jr., and sons of Helena are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cox.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Arnelt and daughters have returned from a visit with relatives in Shreveport.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Buchanan and Mrs. L. L. Buchanan are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cox.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Coleman returned Tuesday from Dallas where they have been the guests of Dr. and Mrs. George Fatis and son.

Mrs. J. S. Crane of Oron is visiting in Hope, Ark., with Mr. and Mrs. Bob Yarbrough.

Among those from out of town who attended the funeral service for Mrs. John A. Davis at the First Methodist Church on Tuesday morning were: John Whit Davis of El Dorado; Mrs. W. R. Stocks, Mrs. Homer Holliman, Mrs. Ethel Fincher, Burt Nell, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stocks of Waldo; Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Cox, Mrs. J. P.
